Linked product codes

If your employees have trouble deciphering supplier codes, it can result in mistakes that cost time and money when an incorrect material is used. This problem can be overcome by putting your own identifying codes next to, and linked to, Avery Dennison product codes. Your codes appear on cheese labels, pallet labels and delivery documentation, which makes identification easy.

Email order acknowledgement and confirmation of delivery date

Forget about faxes! You can receive purchase order acknowledgements delivered right to your desktop. It's a legible and convenient way of assuring you that your order has been received and advising you about when it will be delivered to you.

Electronic pre-delivery alert

Efficiency is important and so is good communication. That's why we're now offering a new electronic alert that is sent via email to your business when your material is being despatched from Avery Dennison. This helps you to better plan your material handling and you could even set up that press for an urgent job, knowing that your delivery is on its way.

Electronic invoices

If you want to receive your invoice the day the stock arrives, but don't want it to be misplaced in the factory, arrange to receive electronic invoices. They will be securely emailed to you, so you know that you have all the relevant information easily accessible.

Consolidated invoices

If you prefer to receive only one invoice a day or one a week, then sign up for a consolidated invoice, daily or weekly and cut down on your paperwork. Avery Dennison gives you the advantage of invoicing options.

Electronic payments

To make paying your account with Avery Dennison easier, you again have choices. We accept electronic payments by the following methods:

- Credit card (Visa, Mastercard and Amex)
- EFT (Electronic Funds Transfer)
